I am very displeased that the NAB is attempting to censor satellite radio with regard to traffic and weather information. I pay for these services and I use them both at home and when I travel. Having this information accessible is a matter of safety and convenience, when I travel on business. The NAB does not own this information, nor does it own this topical domain. Satellite radio listeners demand and deserve the programming that they they are willing to pay for. The NAB should never have a monopoly over information, where safety is involved.
